TODAY'S ISSUES: TREATMENT OF CO-OCCURRING (DUAL DIAGNOSIS) DISORDERS

Co-occurring disorder is a term used to indicate the simultaneous presence of two independent medical disorders. Other terms for co-occurring disorder include "dual diagnosis" and "MICA" (mentally ill-chemical abusing). Within the fields of mental health, psychiatry, and addiction medicine, the term has been popularly used to describe the coexistence of a mental health disorder and chemical dependency or substance abuse.
